

Native Title poem: 'In the name of the Warrgamay'

Description

It's been decades in the making. Now come has the day we can cry, that we have Native Title – in the name of the Warrgamay!

It's been decades in the making – and only the lawyers no why. But we have Native Title – in the name of the Warrgamay!

It's been decades in the making, where mountains stretch out through the sky, through years of strain and aching – in name of the Warrgamay!

Where the eagles soar to heaven, and crystal creeks never run dry, now we have Native Title – in the name of the Warrgamay!

Where our spirits guard the valley, we will rally at Bora and cry: Now we have Native Title – in the name of the Warrgamay!
